Day of foreign languages Dzień języków obcych

Foreign Languages Day is held on September 26. The most important language in the world is English, it is the most important language, because we can communicate with it in almost every country, and we can also communicate with German in many countries. For example, in Papua-New Guinea we will communicate in a language that is a mixture of English and German. You've been to another country before, right? If so, you have probably noticed that there are also many people who speak their mother tongue, e.g. Croatian in Croatia. So much for the Day of Foreign Languages...

Why you should visit London

London, the capital city of England, with population of 10 million people, is a city of many cultures, you can meet people from all around the world. It has many interesting places to visit, here are some of them:

1. Museums:

British museum

The biggest museum in Great Britain and one of the biggest in the world. It has a lot of exhibits, on every topic. It was founded in 1753. Entry is free like in every London museum.

Museum of natural history

It's probably the most popular museum in London, from big skeletons of dinosaurs to a really really big butterfly collection.

2. London buildings:

Big Ben

Big Ben is a nickname for the Great Bell of the striking clock at the north end of the Palace of Westminster.

Tower Bridge

Tower Bridge was officially opened on 30 June 1894. The bridge is 240 m in length with two towers each 213 feet 65 m high.

Buckingham Palace

Buckingham Palace is a London royal residence and the administrative headquarters of the monarch of the United Kingdom. The Palace is located in the City of Westminster.

3. Nice places to visit:

Windsor

A little city near London where is the Windsor castle. It's The place where The Queen lived.

Wizarding world

It's a great place for Harry Potter fans. You can see here many things like „Diagon alley” or actors costumes. In London there are a lot of really big shops, from 5 floor Nike shop to the biggest Lego store in the world. And that's why everyone should visit the capital city of United Kingdom.

BREAKING NEWS!!! AUSTRALIAN ENGLISH IS NOT ENGLISH!!!

Did you know that if a few countries use the same language then it doesn't mean its the same?!?!?! Almost all countries use slang words!!! For example: in Australia "a cold one" is beer!!! Also who could have thought that "avo" means avocado?! Over 25% of the population in Australia are immigrants, which means that in Australia there are a lot of different languages spoken in different places of the country.

This is obviously not the only country where we have a situation like this. If you are one of those people, you have two choices:
1. Speak the language of the country or,
2. speak your language BUT be okay with the fact that somebody might not understand you.

On the foreing language day, we try to see how different situations with languages come to everyone. Why is English so popular? Why don't German learn Polish? Why is it like this when it comes to languages? These might be questions we'll never know answers for. But we know that we were very glad having you today reading this article!!!
THANK YOU AND GOODBYE!

Why is English an international language?

Firstly, let's go back to the history. English is a language that stems from United Kingdom. This country has always focused on conquering overseas territories, like America and Australia. When English people arrived to these places, they introduced their culture to these tribes. After some times these territories have become rich and important. Many countries wanted to have good relations with those countries, so many people learned English language. Many people from different nations could understand each other, because they know English, and this makes this language so international.

Eagerness of the people to learn this language made this language the one that everybody knows. Many creators benefited from it, because they could reach a larger audience. Older people wanted to keep this language as an international, so many of them taught younger generation. People saw it and used this language to make films, games, books and other worldwide things. The easiness of this language motivated more people to learn it, so the even more people know this language!
